ETIQUETTE

While recreating on the trails at Curt Gowdy State Park, please abide by the following guidelines to ensure a safe and enjoyable experience for all.

- Be courteous and considerate. Be respectful of other trail users regardless of their mode, speed or level of skill.
- Keep right and pass left. When passing, give a clear audible, verbal signal to avoid startling horses.
- Hikers yield to travelers on horseback.
- Cyclists yield to all other trail users.
- Dual-sport traffic should yield to both.
- Select routes in keeping with your ability level and always maintain safe and controlled speeds.
- Stay on designated trails. Don’t shortcut – especially on switchbacks. This creates erosion, damage to wildlife habitat and new trails which cannot be maintained.
- Do not disturb wildlife.
- Avoid disturbing natural features.
- Keep pets leashed at all times.
- Pack out your litter.

Under Wyoming law, anyone who takes part in any sporting or recreational opportunity, including equestrian activities, assumes the inherent risk that sport or recreational opportunity, whether those risks are known or unknown, and is legally responsible for any and all damage, injury, death to himself or other persons or property that results from the inherent risk in that sport or recreational opportunity W.S. 1-1-123.
